

Myths

1. Fat Myth: Propaganda by sugar industry. This lead to massive increase in diabetes patience.
2. Diet Myth: Diet plans fundamentally don't work and blame the consumers instead.
3. Exercise Myth: Similar to diet, exercise don't work and blame consumers.

Summary

1. You are what you eat.
2. You have been miseducated by the food industry.
3. Your failed diet attempts are not your fault.
4. Low fat isn't necessarily good for you.

5 tips to transform your eating habits

6 types of hunger

1. Thirst: Our ancestors couldn't transport water that easily, most hydration came from food. So, when thirsty, body sends signal of hunger.
2. Variety: After eating same food for season, body is filled with nutrition and toxins from the type of food. So it asks for variety of food.
3. Empty Stomach: Whenever stomach is empty, we associate it with hunger. When stomach stays empty, stomach can repair itself. Try to drink water if empty stomach feeling becomes strong.
4. Low Blood Sugar: When body is used to burning sugar, it feels hunger when it becomes low in sugar. Let the feeling stay to allow body to burn fat. Eat good quality carbs, and sometimes even avoid carbs. Low blood sugar makes one feel depressed and its most common cause on giving up on diets.
5. Emotional Hunger: Wanting to eat when having bad feeling. Try to create real connections when feeling emotional hunger instead of eating.
6. Nutritional Hunger: The actual hunger when body needs nutrition. Body can't specify the exact thing it needs, so we often eat nutritionally empty food, which still doesn't satisfy body's need for nutrition.

Get Enough of Good